

Preface

The growth and development of academic disciplines, at a phenomenal pace in the current times, have resulted in a proliferation of scholarly journals, to cater to the needs of an ever-expanding intelligentsia. While it is no easy task to keep abreast of the flow of publications even in one's own area of study, journals like Academic Researchn and Review Letters aim to meet the diversified needs of students and academicians of all disciplines. It is gratifying to note that the inaugural issue of the journal has already found its place in scholarly discussions and deliberations, by virtue of its varied scope and updated methodology. It is hoped that the current issue would not only live up to the expectations engendered by the first issue, but also successfully follow the principles espoused by the socialist ideology and contribute to the aim of liberation through education.
