

Preface

It is a happy moment for us to bring before you the fourth issue of our journal Academic Research and Review Letters. We believe that the academic community has welcomed our efforts of disseminating quality research findings. We are indeed open to the needs of the broad academic community. I take this opportunity to thank the support rendered by the researchers from various colleges in the state. We are enthusiastic about working with academicians to share knowledge for the benefit of the community. I believe that this issue too will meet their expectations.
